++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Showers or longer spells of rain, some sunny spells.

Today:
Sunny spells and occasional showers affect northern and eastern Scotland. Increasing cloud brings outbreaks of rain southeast across western, central and southern Scotland from late morning, with showers and sunny spells following in the afternoon. Breezy in north.

Tonight:
Showers become confined to northern and western coasts and the Northern Isles, then dying out later in west. Elsewhere long clear spells developing. Fresh northwesterly winds slowly easing.

Monday:
Few showers in the far northeast and the Northern Isles, otherwise dry with some good spells of sunshine. However cloud increases from the west in the afternoon bringing evening rain.

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Cloud and outbreaks of rain becoming confined to eastern parts Monday with sunny spells developing in west. Wednesday mainly dry with sunny spells but the north then cloudier on Thursday.
